

I feel it is outrageous that governmental regulations be used as a tool to prevent competition in the marketplace. Satellite radio must be allowed to thrive in the marketplace based on its ability to provide what the public desires to hear. Not on the ability of one organization to block competition. Consumers need to have choices. Locally oriented programming on XM should live or die based on "natural selection" not on governmental genetic engineering.